CROWLE

IS a parish in the western division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey. This place, which was formerly a market town, is 167 miles N. from London, 36 N. N. W. from Lincoln, 6 N. N. W. from Epworth, and 16 E. from Doncaster; situate at the north-western extremity of the Isle of Axholme, near the river Don, and within one mile of the Stainforth and Keadby canal, which passes it on the north. The land around here has been greatly improved by the system of warping, that is, by admitting the water from the Trent, which, on its retiring, leaves a deposit of rich sediment. In 1747 the body of a woman was found in an erect position in the peat moor, near the town, at the depth of six feet beneath the surface; from the sandals on the feet, it appeared to have been there for centuries; the hair and nails were entire, and the skin, though discoloured, was soft, and apparently sound. The county magistrates hold here a petty session for the division, and constables are appointed at the court leet of the lord of the manor, the Earl Manners.

The places of worship are the parish church, and POST OFFICE, Elizabeth Tonge, Post Mistress.—Letters arrive every evening (Monday excepted) at five, and are despatched every morning at six.

chapels for independents and Wesleyan methodists. The church, which is dedicated to St. Oswald, is a very ancient structure, of which the original Saxon character is concealed by repeated alterations and repairs, or obliterated by the hand of time: the chief relic is a very fine circular arch, forming the principal entrance. The living is a vicarage, in the patronage and incumbency of the Rev. Godfrey Egremont; his present curate is the Rev. James Johnson. A charity school for teaching children reading, writing, and arithmetic, is partly supported by subscription, and by an endowment of £60. per annum, arising from various bequests—Mr. Wm. Richardson is the present master. The market, which was formerly held on Saturday, has been discontinued; but from March till the end of May, a market for sheep and cattle is held every alternate Monday; and there are fairs on the last Monday in May and November 22nd; for cattle, flax, and hemp. The parish (including the township of EASTOFT) contained, by the census taken in 1821, 1,961 inhabitants, and by that in 1831, 2,113.

DONINGTON,

WITH THE VILLAGES OF GOSBERTON, QUADRING AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

DONINGTON is a small market town, in the parish of its name, wapentake of Kerton, in the parts of Holland; 110 miles from London, 30 s. e. by s. from Lincoln, 11 n. from Spalding, and 4 s. from Swineshead. The town is situate in the fen district, through which a wide and firm rampart of earth has been made, forming a convenient road to Sempringham. Canals, called Black Sluice and Hammondbeck, pass through the parish; and there is a port for barges, by which goods are conveyed between Boston and the Washes. Hemp is rather extensively cultivated in the neighbourhood, for the manufacture of cloth and thread, and for the seed. Donington is one of the stations appointed by the new Boundary Act, (an appendage to the Reform Bill,) for receiving votes at the election of county members to represent the parts of Kesteven and Holland. The places of worship are the parish church, and chapels for baptists and Wesleyan methodists: the church, which is dedicated to St. Mary and the Holy Rood, is of considerable antiquity, with a steeple, on the lower part of which is a stone, bearing a Roman inscription, but which time has nearly obliterated. The living of Donington is a vicarage, in the patronage of the Rev. John Wilson. Here is a good free school, endowed by Mr. Cowley; and there are some other charities, by which the poor of the town are benefited. The market is held on Saturday; and the fairs on the 16th May and 16th October, for horses, cattle, flax, and hemp. The parish (which has no dependent township), contained, in 1821, 1,638 inhabitants, and in 1831, 1,759.

GOSBERTON is a straggling village, in the parish of its name, in the same wapentake and division as Donington, about 4 miles s. from that town. At Rightbolt, a hamlet in this parish, was a cell, belonging to the abbey at Sempringham. The church, is a neat building, dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul: the living is a discharged vicarage, in the patronage of the dean and chapter of Lincoln. The parish, which comprises the hamlets of CHEAL, RIGHTBOLT, and WESTHORPE, contained, in 1821, 1,618 inhabitants, and in 1831, 1,951.

QUADRING is a small village, in the parish of its name, also in the same wapentake and division as Donington, about 3 miles s. therefrom. The church is dedicated to St. Margaret, and the living, which is a discharged vicarage, united to that of Wigtoft, is in the presentation of the bishop of Lincoln. There are several endowments for the education of children, the principal of which is a rent charge, made by Thomas Cowling, in 1701. The parish (which has no dependent township), contained, at the census for 1831, 858 inhabitants.
